Birthright, Citizenship, and Frivolous Dispensations

By John Knapp

FB Image

There are two schools of thought about how a child should be awarded his Citizenship. One method is now very wrong, but the other is right and sorely indicated.

The theory - termed Jus soli - holds that a child becomes a Citizen of the soil upon which he was born. Jus soli has become the umbrella that shields the American 'Anchor Baby' irrational. In this time of hemispheric migrations, from south to north, from less-developed countries to those more developed, from poorer nations to the richer ones, from unstable countries to those more stable, Jus soli is a really bad - potentially suicidal - idea. (See Globalism...)

The other, more reasoned approach to sorting out a newborn's Citizenship - referred to as Jus sanguinis - has nothing at all to do with the geography of one's birthplace, but rather with the Citizenship status of the child's parents. In other words, the child's first birthright is, naturally, to inherit the Citizenship of its parents. This is simple, straightforward and so much less confusing. And, dare I suggest, much less dangerous?

When the Pilgrims came to America, they and their descendants for the next century and a half, were all Subjects of the Crown, and therefore subject to the jurisdiction of the British Empire. As Kings are oft wont to behave, some become tyrants, which is why the American Revolution had to be fought. When the British went home in defeat.... overnight, the former British 'Subjects' became American Citizens in their now-sovereign, brand new country.

But, as the new Constitution was fleshed out, the southern states would not stand down from the issue of slavery. So, the issue of slavery, the great hypocrisy ignored by many of those who'd just overthrown a brutal tyrant for their freedom, remained the snake under the table at the first Constitutional Convention. Seventy years later, the slavery issue would be resolved during a great blood-letting.

A year after the Civil War ended, the U.S. Congress passed the Civil Rights Act of 1866, the purpose of which was to ensure that black Americans were U.S. Citizens with the same rights as all other American Citizens. (Native Americans were excluded from this act, as they were considered Citizens of the tribes to which they belonged.) Another purpose of the CRA of 1866 was to override localized southern attempts to hinder former slaves from enjoying their new-found rights and freedom.

By 1868, the CRA of 1866 had been ratified by the states, so it became the 14th amendment to the Constitution. In 1884, in Elk vs. Wilkins, the Supreme Court ruled that Native Americans were not granted Citizenship by the 14th Amendment. (Native Americans received American Citizenship through subsequent Congressional legislation in 1924, 1940, and 1950)

In 1898, SCOTUS reviewed the case of United States vs. Wong Kim Ark. Ark was born in 1873, to Chinese immigrant-nationals who were living in the United States. Misinterpreting the 14th Amendment, a lazy Court inferred that Ark was an American Citizen (via Jus soli), which was never the 14th Amendment's intent. The purpose of the 14th Amendment was specific to the time and circumstance under which it became law, not as an invitation to be misconstrued years later by leftist politicians trying to enlarge their voter base, at whatever the cost.

The Supreme Court has made a few grievous decisions in its history. The Dred Scott Decision, which was handed down just a few short years before the Civil War erupted, comes to mind. But, the 1898 opinion, that the 14th Amendment also meant that Wong Kim Ark was automatically a U.S. Citizen by virtue of his birth on U.S. soil, even though his parents were not American Citizens, could one day soon prove to be an even worse turn of American jurisprudence.

The illegal immigration America has been subjected to for several decades now has to be stopped. 'Anchor Babies' are an invention of the left, disguised as 'fairness', but mainly used to the left's political benefit.

America is in no way constitutionally compelled to take in anyone who can sneak across our border. If we have no border, we have no country. Awarding American Citizenship via Jus soli is a recipe for the dissolution of what made America, America. There are legal pathways to American Citizenship. There is great trouble in store for any country which is careless enough to lose control of its borders, only to eventually award Citizenship to any Tom, Dick, and Invader.

So, Donald Trump is exactly right, that the current caravan of migrants coming up through Mexico must be turned back from our southern border. Estimates of illegal immigrants already in this country run well past ten million, and maybe twenty. There's no knowing, the number of 'Anchor Babies' here, too....likely a million or more. But who could know the count, really?

It should be noted that the majority of the world's nations do not award Citizenship via Jus soli, but rather award it via Jus sanguinis, where it is tied to the Citizenship of the child's parents at the time of birth. It should be noted that India wisely did away with the Jus soli idea in the face of mass migration from Bangladesh.

It should be noted that all the nations of Europe award Citizenship via Jus sanguinis. Even so, ever-helpless Europe is being overrun by Muslim hordes from North Africa. Europe's days, of remaining European, are now numbered. It also should be noted that most of the nations of Central and South America, including many of its offshore Island Nations, the U.S, and Canada are nearly alone in the world when it comes to awarding Citizenship based on Jus soli.

Finally, it should be noted that the idea of Jus Soli, for determining U. S. Citizenship, has never been formally litigated in a U.S. courtroom, let alone argued in front of the Supreme Court. The 14th Amendment has been dangerously misinterpreted, with a hole poked in it you could drive caravan mobs through. Hopefully, Donald Trump will fix it, one way and another.

This ain't rocket science, America.

Conversations from the Street

Dear Ms. Lunelle,

As I stood with the Southern Cross in hand, a young lady from the small crowd that now surrounded me would ask, "Mr. HK, I read that you were in disagreement with the outcome of the trial of Maya Little who defaced the Silent Sam monument. Could you expound a little more about your position?"

Judge Cabe and the Prosecutor in my opinion stepped away from their judicial duties and allowed this farce of a trial to become an event for trying and convicting the South for making an honorable Stand against a great evil that descended upon its region illegally.

Maya Little getting her 'hand slapped" for vandalizing "Silent Sam"

And for those who use slavery as a weapon of choice against the South and its people; Cabe handed an invitation to break the law, and should step down or relieved of duty by the State Attorney General/Governor. Along with the Prosecutor, Cabe in effect, nullified the laws of North Carolina that established by the people, i.e. monument protection laws, and Historic Commissions.

What these white folk guilters like Judge Cabe, and those of like minds don't understand is that those of us who are descendants of Southern slaves are truly family of the Southern white man. It was his ancestors that gave them his language and his God for their moral compass as they went into the church places with the Honorable Rev. R.L. Dabney of Prince Edward County, Virginia to pray for the safety of Marse Kirby Smith, and his side kick, Alexander, slave and Aid de Camp of General Smith; boyhood friends who grew up in the same house together; a scene playing out all over the South!

Congratulations and kudos to the student Honor Court that did what was in their power to condemn this criminal, Ms. Little!

For the bravery and courage of this integrated military against overwhelming odds to protect its homeland and the rule of law of the National Constitution; the women of the South built Cenotaphs to memorialize their lives.

Should I be able to raise the funds, I shall post their Colors once again at the base of Silent Sam this very week, and hope that, if there is a speech at the unveiling of its return; that I am one of the presenters.

Then came: "Mr. Edgerton, what do you think about the young black kids who went to the White House on October, 20, 2018 as a part of what was deemed 'The Young Black Leaders Summit?'"

"I was very proud of the President for having them," was my reply.

God bless you!

Your brother, HK

“Fifty-One” State Solution

Let’s face it: The 50 governors of the individual States that make up the United States are, in reality, merely agents of a gigantic Federal Government. The U.S. Congress is made up of mostly lawyers from the various States. They spend the majority of their time chasing money. This is the source of the Congressman’s or Senator’s power. The various Departments of the Federal Government are staffed by “Bureaucrat Lifers” who keep the government machine running. These “Civil Servants” are the ones that send you your Social Security checks and Military retirement funds in a timely manner. They are the ones that set the rules for the various elected Governors, Senators and Congressmen. This sea of nameless bureaucrats is the real government and has recently been identified and referred to as the “Deep State”.

On the top of the ladder of the “Deep State Civil Service Hierarchy” are the political appointees that the “Rank and File” bureaucrats take orders from. The nature of civil service bureaucracies is a never-ending expansion. As government grows, the people’s liberty decreases.

The Mother of the Deep State concept was Beatrice Webb, London School of Economics, 1895, and one of the Founders of the Fabian Society, along with her husband, Sidney.

Beatrice Webb’s claim to fame was her convincing the English Parliament to make general ambiguous laws and to have the bureaucrats interpret the laws...exactly what has been going on in the United States since the advent of the Progressive movement.

The dark “Deep State” villains in the Federal Government are Social Justice Warriors modeled after the Fabians in England. The Fabian Socialists are the reinvention of Karl Marx’s Communism, which came into existence after Marx’s death.

The “New World Order Bankers” who have “Social Welfare” as their top propriety want to give out as many “Entitlements” as possible, based on borrowing by the Federal Government. The Bankers make more money on interest from Socialist or Communist governments than they do from Free Enterprise countries.

A Quick Review

The Original 13 States would not agree to new Constitutional provisions until certain rights were enumerated and were agreed upon. The first Ten Amendments, called the Bill of Rights, were enacted as an inducement for the 13 States to embrace the Constitution that we have today. The 10th amendment was designed to limit

Central Government, which today is called the Federal Government. The Tenth Amendment was designed to protect the States from being gobbled-up by “Swamp Creatures” in Washington, D.C. The “Foundering Fathers” accurately predicted and understood the bureaucracies that governments create.

The Solution is at Hand...It's called the Rebirth of States Rights

Within the United States there are 51 legislative governmental systems. Each of the 50 States has a system that is similar to each other. And the 51st governmental body is the Federal Government. All are subject to the Supreme Law of the land, the Constitution of the United States. Over the years, the “Social Engineers” like Beatrice Webb, and the new Progressive breed of Socialist, Marist, Internationalist busy-bodies with insatiable appetites for centralized governance have over-whelmed the ‘Welfare Systems’ of the 51 governments. The State of California, for instance, is burning itself up in socialist utopian delusions. This State mirrors the ideas of the Swamp in D.C. and is spending itself into insolvency.

We need the 50 “Sovereign States” and the Federal Government they created to get their act together and to restore “Constitutional Governance”. The salvation of our country resides in returning the governmental structures back to the vision of our Founding Fathers. The progressive influence of the Deep State must be purged if individual liberty is to remain.

Who Won the Midterm Election?

FB Image

An Election without Journalistic Coverage

The election came and went with the various media outlets, most notably the cable TV coverage, failing to separate their prejudice from their reporting. CNN on one side and Fox News on the other conducted “Pep Rallies” to further their partisan teams. We will not go into the absurdity of the three major television networks, ABC, NBC and CBS; networks that are now only background noise in the scheme of things.

On the morning following the election, November 7th, "Fox and Friends" with their more newly acquired entertainers glibly announced that the Republicans won, that the Democrats won and President Trump won. Fox News has replaced festive giggling for journalism. They reported that the Democrats won the House, the Republicans won the Senate and President Trump was more influential, than any previous President in history, in the midterm election process. This was their analysis. How nice, everybody's a winner. The Fox News "Reporters" must have been educated in government schools where everybody wins in the collective utopia. Their hype totally missed the ramifications of the election.

Deep State Wins the Election

The Republicans didn't win because they won the Senate. The Republicans won because they lost the House. For the past eight years, embarrassingly, the Republicans have failed to uphold their Constitutional responsibilities. In 2010 the Tea Party movement put the Republicans in control of the House. From 2010 until 2016 the House Republicans dutifully funded the Obama Administration and the Deep State at every turn. The "Crybaby Republicans" claimed that they did not have enough power to do otherwise. They needed to have the Senate and the Presidency. The real GOP embarrassment occurred after they secured the Senate and the Presidency. For the past two years, the Republican-controlled government failed to deliver on their promises and to support their President, preferring to cater to their "Deep State" friends instead. By losing the House, the Republicans are off the hook. They can go back to playing a blame game instead of governing. The House loss is a win for the Republicans, but a loss for the American people.

The Democrats didn't win the house, they got it by default. The sequence of Speaker of the House from Pelosi to Boehner, to Ryan, to Pelosi has not and will not affect the direction of the government. The structure will remain the same. The wallpaper will change. The winner is the Deep State and the corruption associated with it. The investigations in the House will be re-directed away from the principal players in the Obama Administration and more importantly Washington, DC, itself and redirected against the current President. The truth be told, it's what everybody, both Republican and Democrat, in Washington wants.

The "Blue Wave", that the Democrats expected, was neutralized by an equally large "Red Wave". Both sides were highly motivated. What the election verified was a deeply divided country in terms of populations. The great landmasses are represented by about half the people and the small, isolated, densely populated urban areas are represented by the other half. This is going to create a problem. People living in the vastness of America are not prepared to submit their interests to a few major metropolitan areas.

The degree of radicalization of the Democrat Party is widely known. This election year reveals that Democrats are willing to run on the Communist Party USA platform, in full view. This has been demonstrated in two high-profile Governor's races and in two Senate races which were won initially by Republicans with extremely small margins. The governor's race in Florida between Andrew Gillum (D) and Ron DeSantis (R) and the governor's race in Georgia between Brian Kemp (R) and Stacey Abrams (D) reveals great divide even in the deep Southern traditional conservative States. Senate races in what should be conservative areas in the West reflect a similar situation. Ted Cruz (R) narrowly beat out Beto O'Rourke (D), a Progressive Communist, in the Texas Senate race. A similar situation exists in Arizona in the Senate race between Martha McSally (R) and Kirsten Sinema (D).

The close margins have, of course, prompted some of the candidates to ask for recounts. So the disposition of high office hangs in the balance between Communists and those who subscribe to the capitalist system and the Constitution. Joseph Stalin once said, "It's not the people who vote that count. It's the people who count the votes." The Democrats have a long history of subscribing to Chairman Stalin's comment. In the corrupt urban centers of America, there are always Supervisors of Elections who will find the necessary votes to prevail.

The mid-term election of 2018 is now in the process of losing voter confidence.

The first State of the Union address was given by George Washington on January 8, 1790. The internal structure of the Union from 1790 to the present has been one of considerable strength. Americans, regardless of party, were always Americans first. There was one exception: The State of the Union Address written by President James Buchanan was read, on December 3, 1860 to both houses of the 36th Congress, by a clerk. This was the procedure then. The President asked, "Why is it, then, that discontent now so extensively prevails, and the Union of the States, which is the source of all these blessings, is threatened with destruction?" This State of the Union address was given on the eve of the War between the States.

President Trump's first State of the Union address in January 2018 was boycotted by many in the Washington establishment. Will the President be forced to recognize the division, as did Buchanan in 1860, in his second State of the Union address? The midterm election solved nothing. And when elections do not resolve the problems, the problems are solved in war.

The massive division will be exasperated because large portions of the population believe we are living in a democracy. Our Constitution created a Republic, not a democracy. Misunderstandings at this level will be very hard to resolve. The people living in the red zone, which is the overwhelming land mass, are not going to surrender their liberty to tyranny created inherently by democracies, to the people in the blue zone... the urban population centers. God help us. Nobody won this election. Nobody! And the Deep States continues!

Nights of Lights' Light Up

Photos by TCCR Staff

On November 17, 2018, the City of St. Augustine celebrated their 25th Annual “Light Up” of the “Nights of Lights” in the historic district of St. Augustine, Florida. With the flip of one switch, 3 million small white bulbs lit up the city for the holiday and winter seasons from November 17, 2018 to February 3, 2019. The glittering spectacle has become an internationally recognized event. The “Light-Up” event in the historic district attracts approximately 8000 people, with 5000 in the Plaza and the overflow of about 3000 on St. George Street and the Bayfront.

The St. Augustine Tea Party (SATP) has had a presence at the “Nights of Lights Light Up” event for seven of the last nine years. [SATP formed in 2010 Ed] According to Lance Thate, SATP Chairman, the Tea Party refrained from carrying politically sensitive signs during the “Light Up”, because they were there to join with the public in the celebration. They simply carried a sign which identified them and they came in period clothing as the Tea Party’s Town Criers. The SATP Chairman went on to say:

“The public would engage in our activities by joining us for photo exchanges. Those photographs were widely spread on social media. All of this changed, last year, as community organizer, Ron Rawls made his appearance with Black Lives Matter, the Occupiers and the “New Black Panther Party”. In Saul Alinsky styled demonstrations, intimidation, fear, hate and racism emerged. The Tea Party unites people. The Progressive Communists divide.”

The Black Supremacist Returns

Since last year's Nights of Lights Light Up, Ron Rawls has transformed himself from a Martin Luther King want to be, to a Malcolm X image. This transformation is visible in his demonstrations throughout the past year. This troubled many within the city government. It ultimately culminated in a new ordinance which was designed to curb his disruptive activities in events that exceed 50 people. It also strengthened the Police Dept's prerogative in separating opposing demonstrators. Many in the Tea Party opposed this new ordinance because they correctly perceived that it would apply to them, as well, and there are Constitutional issues. In fact, in May 2018, Rawls violated numerous existing ordinances, with impunity, while the police stood by. However, it was the Tea Party that was cordoned off and threatened with arrest. The Tea Party had violated no ordinances. The Town Crier's perfect seven year record of demonstrations on St. George Street, were without a single incident involving the police or any disruption occurring, notwithstanding.

Photos by TCCR Staff

Because of the new ordinance, the Tea Party chose not to engage the Rawls demonstrators. This is true also of the 3% Militia. Both groups were in the audience, and observed at close hand, the activities of those whose goal was to disrupt the festivities. One of the chants was, "Sorry about your Christmas lights, but we're in a bigger fight." This is a completely true statement. They are engaged in a Cultural War to undermine the values that bind this nation together. Another chant was, "This is what democracy looks like." A very true statement! The very nature of Democracy is 'mob rule' and with this chant they discredited themselves among those who bear witness. The Communists are their own worst enemy. They always play to each other and, consequently, repel the public.

Photos by TCCR Staff

Last year, it was all about the destruction of Veteran's Memorials. For the time being, Rawls has lost that battle. And he credits racism as the reason for his defeat. In the picture on the left, the sign they carried calls his one-time ally, Mayor Shaver, a Racist. In fact, according to Rawls, everybody is a racist and St. Augustine is the most racist city in America. He spent a large portion of his evening screaming at the top of his lungs, "RACIST, RACIST RACIST, RACIST," while he wore, the collar of his AME Church.

Photos by TCCR Staff

The SATP Chairman added the follow comment,

“If you listen to the Progressive Communists on the left, you would have to reach the conclusion that slavery, Jim Crow oppression and anti-civil rights opposition concurrently exists today. The facts are that slavery ended 153 years ago. The Jim Crow days are long gone, and even the civil rights opposition ended 54 years ago. There was a time in America when real racism prevailed. I am old enough to have witnessed some of it in my youth. However, in all my years I have never seen a man, black or white, more racist than Ron Rawls. I am not name-calling here, but making a definitive statement. The man is obsessed with racism. To say that America is racist, today is simply a gross distortion. Are there racists in our society? Yes, and they will be with us forever. Do they have the power to suppress the black people? The answer is absolutely no. A black man today can do anything he sets out to do. He can even become President of the United States. The Progressive Communists need victims and they impose on their captive plantation victims a sense of failure that is almost criminal in nature. The good news is that many black people are walking away. Recently, a black patriot attended our Tea Party talking about the ‘WalkAway’ program. This is so exciting, the idea of black people being free from those who exploit them.”

Photos by TCCR Staff

St. Augustine’s version of “Pravda” the St. Augustine Record reported that Rawls said he was pleased with what happened. “We went to disrupt and we disrupted,” he said. The reality of the situation was that Rawls did not disrupt, he was either ignored or criticized by the people he encountered. Rawls simply did not have enough people to have an impact on the 5000 people that were occupying the Plaza. Loudspeakers playing music drowned out even their obnoxious chanting. With the population density inside the Plaza as great as it was most of the public were not aware of the demonstrators.

According to the Record Rawls estimated that he was joined by 150 protesters. The Tea Party counted their numbers as they marched by before they broke into smaller groups so they could appear to be on each side of the Plaza at the same time. The actual number of demonstrators was 58. There were several that were counted, who may have just been part of the public who got swept up with the group. We say this because they were carrying no signs and did not appear to be dressed as the protesters were. At one point early in the demonstration, it appeared there were more “ACLU Legal Observers” than there were protesters. It was amusing to see them try to convince the public that they were neutral. In fact, they never left the Rawls group, marching all the way back to the AME Church.

SAPD Continues Special Treatment for Rawls

Photos by TCCR Staff

The St. Augustine Tea Party, when demonstrating in public areas, has always understood that they could not block or impede normal pedestrian traffic on a public walk. The city's ordinance regarding picketing expressly prohibits it. Never, in its entire seven years, has the Tea Party had a police escort. However, black has its privileges. And one of them appears to be police escorts for their activities. Last year at the Light Up event the police escorted them right up to the pavilion where Christmas music was being played. The new ordinance prohibits them being inside the Plaza restricting them to the sidewalks on the perimeter of the Plaza. It appears that the demonstrators have priority over attendees to the event. Tea party volunteers witnessed police officers ordering the public off the walk so that the Rawls' group could proceed effortlessly. Volunteers have witnessed police escorts on St. George Street as well. When Chief Fox was asked about it some months ago, he acknowledged that a problem existed if in fact this was going on.

Is Rawls in his Twilight?

There was a time when Rawls had greater numbers, better media coverage and support within the City Commission. Clearly over the past year, this has been dwindling. At the previous Nights of Lights event, the Three Percent militia counted 63 participants. The city claimed 163. As pointed out previously an interesting play on numbers. This year he had 58, with the possibility that the number actually was more like 54. His last outing on St. George Street and dwindled to about 12. And his great "Selma Styled March" in May, 2018 from Jacksonville to St. Augustine, in which no one actually marched the full distance, was 47.

The Tea Party, asks the question, how long will our city officials rollover for the outrageous behavior of a bully, priestly collar or not?

JFK 55 Years ago Today

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, the 35th President of the United States, was assassinated on Friday, November 22, 1963, in Dallas, Texas, while riding in a presidential motorcade through Dealey Plaza. JFK was, at the time, considered a Liberal. The term Progressive was not fashionable in his day. Kennedy was adored by the media of the time, much in the same manner that Obama was more recently. JFK, during his 1000 days in office, enforced the “Monroe Doctrine” by keeping a Soviet first strike capacity out of Cuba. JFK’s loyalty to the country was never in question. He served honorably as a naval officer during World War II. In an effort to stimulate the economy, Kennedy cut taxes in the same manner that Reagan did 20 years later. The civil rights movement started, in earnest, during his administration and his response to it was based on the founding documents.

Barry Goldwater had written a book, I believe in 1960, entitled “The Conscience of a Conservative”. “The millenniums” of the early sixties, the young people, embraced the conservative movement in the same way that later generations of young people would embrace the libertarian movement of Ron Paul. Barry Goldwater put America first, much in the same way that Donald Trump does today. The coming election in 1964 was to be between Barry Goldwater and John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Goldwater and Kennedy had planned to tour the country together by rail during the campaign. They called it “whistle stopping” back then. JFK’s assassination changed all that.

This was the world of politics that started my political activism. I joined the Republican Party and became an operative for Barry Goldwater.

Thanksgiving occurred on November 28 in 1963. There was a lot to talk about around the Thanksgiving dinner table that year. Somehow people were able to do that in 1963.

55 years of Progressive entrenchment makes that impossible this Thanksgiving. In 2018, we live in a time where families are separated and dysfunctional over politics. When families can’t unite, it is going to be very difficult to unite the country.

We live in the greatest country that has ever existed. Nowhere in the entire spectrum of history has a people lived so well. Let us be grateful for our blessing this Thanksgiving day.

UF Historic Board Meeting at Governor House

Inmates are running the Asylum

The Titular Chairman of the above meeting to decide the disposition of the Loring Monument located at Loring Plaza, in St. Augustine, Florida, at 10: AM, on November 16, 2018, was a no-show. Thus, the 18 'Inmates' threw the 'Opinion Ball' around to each other and bantered about how to spend $100,000.00 to appease the absent Titular Chair, Rev. Ron Rawls, of the said "Meeting".

One of the brilliant points of discussion was "What to name Loring Plaza"?

Dah! Why do numerous cities and towns around the USofA have a Main Street, or a Church Street, or a Ponce de Leon Blvd, or a Pacetti Rd, or a Mickler Blvd? Roads, buildings, bridges and many Plazas are named after People! Loring Plaza has been called 'Loring Plaza' for a Century!

But the real 'Chairman', that the inmates were trying to appease, was not in attendance 'cause him want-to-take-em-down'. He was, maybe, busy his making plans to disrupt the Nights of Lights Celebration at the neighboring Plaza i.e. Plaza De La Constitution, where another Confederate Monument is honored. Rawls actually sat at the Conference Table with the UF Inmates, at one point in the past, who were 'judging' what to do with the Loring Memorial resting place. The Plaintiff was sitting with the Judges and actually voted against the Defenders in the audience who were given only three minutes to speak. Soviet Style Justice!

At the most recent, of the 'UF Inmates' meetings, there was even talk of 'turning the Loring Monument around' so the Confederate Flag would not be so visible. Some claim that the small engraved flag on the tomb of General Loring, offended a couple of Black folk, the Reverend Rawls and his mob.

The local leftist rag, the St. Augustine Record Newspaper, once again, featured the recommendations of the 'inmates' for desecrating the Loring Memorial in an article, 'UF opts...' by Sheldon Gardner, Sat. Nov. 17, 2018. As usual, it lionized the inmates and ignored the many defenders of the sacred resting place of General Loring. One spokesman for the Loring family descendents threatened, for the second time, publically, a legal suit if the City and/or UF mess with the physical grave site.

[Editor's comment: The UF Board Members are affectionately called "inmates" because they are PC robots.]
